SOSC2740: Gender and Society

I. COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course introduces students to the sociological study of gender by exploring how gender is constructed, maintained, and challenged in society. It examines what gender is, how differences between men and women are socially produced, and how these differences intersect with broader systems of inequality such as class, race, and power. Through four sections — basic concepts, gendered institutions, gender in everyday life, and gender in the global economy — students will develop critical tools to analyze how gender shapes their own lives and the world around them. The course encourages reflection on personal experiences while engaging with key theories and case studies across local and global contexts.

II. INTENDED LEARNING OUTCOMES

Upon completion of the course, students should be able:

- (1) to define and apply foundational concepts such as sex and gender, and explain how gender is produced and reproduced through social processes;
- (2) to critically examine how gender differences are embedded in institutions (such as family, education, work, and media) and how these differences relate to broader systems of power, privilege, and inequality;
- (3) to reflect on how gender norms and expectations shape their own lives and experiences, and assess how gender operates across diverse social, cultural, and economic settings.

III. MODES OF ASSESSMENT & ILOs

Class Participation	10%	ILO1: Assess students' immediate understanding of course content during in-class activities.
Quiz 1	25%	ILO1 & ILO2: Evaluate students' comprehension of key concepts and theories, as well as their grasp of the complex processes involved in the construction of gender and inequality.
Quiz 2	25%	ILO1 & ILO2: Evaluate students' comprehension of key concepts and theories, as well as their grasp of the complex processes involved in the construction of gender and inequality.

Final Exam	40%	ILO1, ILO2 & ILO3: Assess students' overall understanding of course content and their ability to synthesize and apply what they have learned to broader social contexts.
------------	-----	--

- ✧ Class participation: best 5 scores out of 8; must be done in class, NO make-up.
- ✧ 2 closed book quizzes: MC questions + short answer questions.
- ✧ A final examination in the form of 2 long questions; assessing students' understanding of the subject matter, analytical competence and the ability to integrate the course materials.
